LEGISLATURE SLIPPED ONE
OVER ON OUR SPORTING ED.

Terre Haute, Ind.
Jan. 27, 1930

Dear "Say":—
In reviewing the sport column of your paper recently, we noticed a very bad and unexcusable error on your part. You referred to the Indiana State Teachers College as the Terre Haute Normal. We feel that an apology is due us for this unconceivable error.

hind time. The name was changed by the 1929 Legislature.

Which reminds me of one I heard last night over the radio. "What does a billiard ball do when it stops rolling?" And the answer is: "Looks 'round."

One of my really good friends, this morning asked me if I thought the peach crop was damaged. I managed to hold my temper however, and did not tell him what I thought.

Another one I recently heard was about the little boy who was asked by his teacher to write a sentence in which he should use the word "fascinate." The sentence: "My mother bought a new dress with ten hooks on it but it was so tight she could only fascinate."

This is the open season on sassafras and candidates. And it won't be long now until tree molasses will be crashing through in its annual run.

The Weather—Better thanks.

I may be a little short on "column" but I sure am long on cold.

I note that our old fellow townsman Mutt Murphy has been "picked up"—I never could quite get that expression—on a charge of appropriating some Esquimo Pies. As far as I am concerned he can have all of mine this kind of weather and I'll never raise a stir. But he had better lay off my hot lemonade.

It sure is wonderful to know that spring is coming, even though it is further than just around the corner.

MAY IDENTIFY STOLEN FOWLS

Deputy Sheriff Alva Bryan took a number of Putnam county people who have suffered losses of chickens recently to Indianapolis in hopes that they might identify their property in a bunch of chickens captured there last night.

Two men whose names are not known here were arrested in the capital city and are held pending investigation of the ownership of the chickens.

Those who accompanied Deputy Bryan to Indianapolis to identify their property were: Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Summers, Floyd township; Jacob Knauer of northeast of Greencastle; Mrs. Charles Everman of Russell township; and Roy Terry of Mount Meridian, who was reported also to have lost some chickens.

FUNERAL OF MRS. PECK TODAY

Last rites for Miss Harriet Peck, age 86 years, who died at her home on the corner of Locust and Seminary streets Saturday afternoon, were held this afternoon from the residence at 3 o'clock with Rev. C. Howard Taylor, pastor of the Methodist church in charge. Interment was in Forest Hill cemetery. The deceased is a sister of William and Leonard Peck, both of this city.

Mrs. C. W. Otis sang two selections at the funeral.

THE WEATHER

Fair tonight and Wednesday, colder tonight.

BANKERS TO MEET AT BLOOMINGTON

Members of the Indiana State Bankers association are to hold a banker's clinic at Indiana university from Feb. 11 to 14 under auspices of the commerce and finance department. It was announced today. Sessions will be held in Commerce Hall.

Local bankers will act as a reception committee and will provide a dinner and smoker for the visitors during their four-day stay in Bloomington.

It is expected that there will be an attendance of from 40 to 50 bankers from different parts of the state at the meetings. There will be a registration fee on all who come to attend the school for bankers, it was learned.—Bloomington World.

HERMAN BECK TO CLOSE HIS AUTO AGENCY

TO VACATE SHOW ROOM FEBRUARY 1, BUT WILL RETAIN OFFICES ON SECOND FLOOR OF BUILDING WHILE IN PROCESS OF CLOSING UP BUSINESS—HANDLED THE NASH AUTOMOBILE

After several years in the automobile agency business in Greencastle, Herman Beck, who for the past year has been the Nash dealer here, will close up his agency, February 1, at which time he will give up his display room at 10 south Jackson street.

During the process of closing up his business, Mr. Beck will have offices on the second floor of the same building.

Mr. Beck came to Greencastle at the time work at building the Indiana Portland Cement Plant, now the Lone Star Cement plant began. He is a brother of Adam Beck who was at the head of the project.

When the mill was sold to its present owners, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Beck, who had during their several years of residence here become very much attached to Greencastle and its people decided to continue this city as their home.

Mr. Beck at that time launched in the automobile business in which he has continued until this time.

It will require several months to close up the financial end of the business during which time Mr. Beck will occupy offices on the second floor of the building at 10 south Jackson street.

Although he is considering several different projects, Mr. Beck has not yet decided upon his future work.

JUDGE JAMES P. HUGHES ASKS DEMOCRATIC RE-NOMINATION

Judge James P. Hughes, who has so efficiently served as Judge of the Putnam Circuit court for several years, has announced he will ask re-nomination for that office at the primary election in May. Judge Hughes, during his term on the bench, has established a statewide reputation as a jurist, and his record on the bench is an outstanding one. Judge Hughes is a graduate of DePauw and the Indiana Law school.

Following his graduation from law school he started practice in this city in which he continued until he was elected to the Judgeship.

HI-Y AT LADOGA

LADOGA, Jan. 25.—Ladoga's Hi-Y club met Thursday night at the high school building. A new departure was made in the session when each member took some part in the program. Short talks, jokes and stunts were features. One member was almost ejected in disgrace when he started a debate on "How a Teacher Should Preside Over the School Assembly," but he was forgiven when each member expressed his opinion. The local Hi-Y hopes to schedule several net games with surrounding clubs in the near future and in view of this ten boys attended the initial practice last Wednesday.

FEAR BODIES MAY BE FOUND AS RIVERS FALL

ARMY AVIATORS REPORT APALLING SPECTACLE AS THEY FLY OVER STRICKEN SECTIONS

ICE GORGE ON LITTLE WABASH

Homes Where Marooned Residents Formerly Waved Now Show No Signs of Life

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 28.—(INS)—Fear that many bodies may be found when the flood waters of the Wabash and White Rivers recede from the inundated regions of Knox, Gibson and Posey Counties, and the the thaws come was expressed here by army aviators who have been reconnoitering daily from the air over the stricken sections of Southwestern Indiana.

The army aviator reported "appalling spectacles" between Mt. Vernon, Ind., and Shawneetown, Ind., as the result of a gigantic ice gorge at the mouth of the Little Wabash River.

At least 1,500 persons have been isolated in this stricken area; the flyers estimated. The aviators said they feared death may have come to some of these marooned flood victims because of absence of smoke from many marooned homes.

Mayor R. F. Taylor and Captain Earl W. Sweeney, reported instances where marooned residents came out of their homes and waved at them when the army flyer first flew over some of the isolated homes. But in the last day or two many of these isolated homes have shown no signs of life any more.

Lieutenant D. D. Watson reported that 15 miles below Mt. Vernon there were about fifteen women in the upper story of a marooned house and that they had no means of getting fuel or food that he could see.

Efforts were to be made today by means of motor boats to reach twenty or more persons, including seven children, and two women reported marooned on Cutoff Island, opposite New Harmony, Ind.

SIMPSON LECTURE IS ANNOUNCED AT DEPAUW

The Rev. Oscar Thomas Olson, pastor of the Mt. Vernon Place M. E. church at Baltimore, Md., will deliver the Simpson lectures at DePauw university February 5, 6 and 7. His general theme is "Some Validities of Today." The Simpson lectures were founded for DePauw's first president, Matthew Simpson, by daughters of Bishop Simpson.

The lecturer this year, Mr. Olson, was born in Chicago. He was graduated from Albion college with an A. B. degree in 1911 and did post-graduate work in the Union Theological Seminary and Columbia university, receiving his M. A. degree from the latter school in 1913. He is a member of Sigma Nu fraternity and of Delta Sigma Rho, honorary organization.

Mr. Olson had the unique experience of debating against DePauw university teams while he was a student at Albion in 1909 and in 1910. He received his D. D. degree from Albion in 1921.

Mr. Olson was a member of the American Seminary during the summer of 1925 and studied in England, Germany and France. He traveled in the Near East and Holy Land the following year and was exchange pastor at the Renfield United Free church at Glasgow, Scotland in the summer of 1928. He traveled in central Europe last year. The Rev. Mr. Olson has a special appeal to college students having been college preacher at Gettysburg college, Dickinson college, Johns Hopkins university, Western Maryland college and Goucher college. He was minister of the Royal Oak church at Detroit and Trinity church of Detroit before going to Mt. Vernon Place, Baltimore in 1920.

Mr. Olson will give five lectures, three will be in the University morning chapel exercise, one will be at night of February 6, and one will be in the afternoon of February 5.

SPECIAL MATINEE FOR CHILDREN

The movie "Four Feathers" coming tomorrow at the Granada theatre for a three days run, has been highly endorsed as a picture for children. It was endorsed by the Indiana Endorsers of Photoplays.

A special concession price has been made to grade school children for a matinee to be held Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The picture was filmed in Africa and has many actual and accurate pictures of the wilds of Africa and jungle scenes which are very educational.

The schools are cooperating with Mr. Bidwell, manager of the Granada.

The next picture which will show here and which is highly endorsed for children will be "The Virginian" and will be here in March.

THREE NEGROES HURT WHEN CAR HITS BIG TRUCK

INDIANAPOLIS MEN IN COUNTY HOSPITAL FOLLOWING ACCIDENT ON NATIONAL YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

Three negro men are in the Putnam County hospital suffering from injuries received when their new Ford sedan was demolished Monday afternoon when it struck a large moving van on the National road.

The injured are: BRANNEY GEDDIE, 4114 Cornelius Ave., Indianapolis, concussion of the brain.

FRED WILSON, 315 West 42nd St., Indianapolis, concussion of the brain.

GUY RUSSELL, 4126 Cornelius Ave., fracture of the nose.

The accident happened about 4 o'clock on the National road in front of the home of Mrs. Dock Hurst. The driver of the negro car was trying to pass another car, causing his car to slide into the truck, striking the truck with the side of the car. Two men were rendered unconscious and hospital authorities stated this morning that they had never regained consciousness.

One was brought to the hospital in the McCurry ambulance and two in the Recker ambulance. Their condition was not considered critical.

The car first struck by the negroes was driven by Charles Myers, of Clinton, Indiana. The name of the driver of the moving van is not known here.

The car of the negroes, a Ford sedan was completely wrecked. The left side where it had hit the truck was smashed in, the doors being forced half way through the body. The glass on the sides was broken to bits, and the windshield cracked. The car was practically fit only for junk.

The wrecker was towed to the Tribby garage.

Guy Russell, who suffered the broken nose in the wreck, left the hospital this afternoon to return to his home in Indianapolis.

Emery Aker of Madison township is seriously ill at home. He is suffering of heart disease.

BUS AND TRUCK IN COLLISION AT CROSSING

DAMAGE DONE TO BLOOMINGTON BUS AND IDEAL CLEANERS CAR IN CRASH THIS MORNING

Slippery streets this morning caused an accident which damaged the delivery truck of the Ideal Cleaners and the Marmon bus belonging to the Greencastle-Bloomington bus line, at College and Hanna streets.

The bus, driven by Lawrence Whitton of Bloomington was going east on Hanna street, and the delivery truck a Ford was going south on College. It was driven by Robert Wayland, Delta Upsilon house, student at DePauw.

Both drivers saw the danger and tried to stop, but were unable to because of the slippery condition of the streets. The bus reached a practical stop right in the middle of the intersection, and the truck swerved to the east to miss it.

He was unable to entirely avoid a collision, however, and the front ends of the two vehicles met. The bus skidded around on the ice and the left rear wheel struck the curb on the southeast corner of the intersection.

The truck kept on going and turned almost directly into the confectionery operated at the corner by William Robbins. It was clear onto the sidewalk before it stopped.

Neither of the drivers was injured. A number of people, passengers in the bus, also escaped unhurt.

Both cars were taken to the Franklin street garage for repairs. Considerable damage was done to the front axle and both front fenders of the truck. The bus had both front lights broken and the front fender slightly dented.

More serious damage was done where the bus had hit the curb. The housing on the left rear wheel was smashed, and a number of spokes broken. Damage was estimated at $10 to each car. Blame for the accident was not fixed and it appeared that neither driver was more at fault than the other.

FIVE DIE AS MONOPLANE BURNS, CRASHES

TRAVELAIR CABIN SHIP OF CENTRAL AIRWAYS WRECKED NEAR FAIRBANKS, KANSAS

DEAD HUDDLED IN FRONT

Airline Crews Destroy All Traces of Wreckage Before Official Investigators Arrive

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Jan. 28.—(INS)—State warrants charging criminal negligence on the part of Central Airlines, subsidiary of Universal Aviation Corporation, in connection with the crash of Central Airlines cabin monoplane here last night, will be asked today, Dr. Ben F. Coffin, Wyandotte county coroner, announced this morning.

After a brief investigation Dr. Coffin declared he believed the airline officials should be held criminally liable for hampering the official investigation into the crash which killed five persons.

"Most of the available evidence has been destroyed and removed, making it virtually impossible to conduct an intelligent investigation into the most disastrous air tragedy this city has ever experienced," Dr. Coffin declared.

Richard H. Lees, Jr., inspector for the aeronautical branch of the department of commerce, also protested the action of the airline's employees in destroying the wrecked plane. However, Lees said the federal laws held no provisions preventing the airline from removing or destroying the wreckage of a plane.

By RICHARD C. WILSON
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Jan. 28.—There was little wreckage left today to tell the story of the horrible death of five persons in a flaming travelair cabin monoplane of the Central Airlines, subsidiary of Universal Aviation Corporation.

Investigators arriving at the scene of the crash near Fairfax airport here today found that crews of the airline had destroyed the wreckage of the plane and had attempted to conceal the crater made by the flaming ship as it struck the ground.

Pending the verdict of an official investigation, there was disagreement today as to the cause of the crash. The plane, according to witnesses, made a wide circle at an altitude of 400 feet above the airport preliminary to landing about 5:30 p. m. last night. As it neared the earth in its fatal plunge, fire broke out. A terrific explosion occurred as the ship struck the ground.

The seared remains of the dead were found in a grim huddle at the front of the cabin, killed from the impact of the crash.

As quickly as the bodies were removed, a hastily mustered crew of pilots and mechanics from the Universal Airlines and Central Airlines, began removing all evidence of the accident, savagely fighting off reporters and photographers as they worked.

The smoking frame of the ship was torn apart with axes and saws. Within an hour, all evidence of the wreck had been strewn about the corn field where the plane crashed. Where the ship had plowed up the soft soil a bonfire was built.

Only a few scattered reminders remained as evidence of the death toll. A woman's comb, a magazine, a box of cold remedy and a broken package of cigarettes were scattered around where they had fallen from the clothing of the four men and the young woman who met death.

A newspaper photographer rushed up to the scene where the airline's employees were frantically engaged in dismembering the wreckage. He was ordered to leave.

"You're going to get hurt if you set up that camera," shouted one pilot, brandishing an ax.

"We've got orders from Sloniger to see that no pictures are taken," ex (Please Turn to Page 2)

SOCIETY

Meal Planning Subj. Of Study Group

There were seventeen members and one guest present at the Pre-School Child Study Group Monday evening in Alford Hall. Mrs. Emmitt Mendenhall of Westfield was a guest. At the resignation of Mrs. Wm. Huggard as group leader, Mrs. John Cartwright was given her duties. The subject for the evening was, "Meal Planning and Food Preparation." The comprehensive paper on the subject was read by Mrs. Harold Ross. She opened her talk with the statement "The average child from an orphan home rated higher in a health test than the average child living in the same neighborhood." She brought out the fact that great care and planning are needed in the preparation of nourishing food for growing children. Mrs. Ross gave several helpful lists of calorie content, weight required, and food proportions.

A good eating habit from the point of health and propriety was discussed by Mrs. Ross.

Mrs. Robert John gave two sample daily diets for a young child.

At the close of group discussion pamphlets pertaining to various phases of child care were distributed by Mrs. Ross.

Ladoga Literary Circle Discusses South Folklore

LADOGA, Jan. 25.—The members of the Ladoga Literary Circle were entertained Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wallace Ashby, assisted by her mother, Mrs. S. C. Gray, with a negro program entitled "The Folklore of the South."

During the business session, Mrs. Perry Tapp was elected to membership of the circle. A communication was read from the Riley hospital thanking the circles for their Christmas donations.

Twenty-three members answered to roll call with "Negro Superstitions" and anecdotes. Two of the finest papers of the club were given at this meeting—the first "The Life of Booker T. Washington" by Mrs. M. J. Benson, the other a book review of "The River's children" by Miss Lydia Hostetter.

Mrs. Ida Grantham gave three negro dialect readings, "Howdy, Honey, Howdy," "The Party" and "When Malindy Sings."

Mrs. Grant Rose gave a group of negro spirituals, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See," "Deep River" and "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," which were greatly enjoyed by all, playing her own accompaniment.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Leona May Ragan, Mrs. Alice Himes, Mrs. Chas. Graybill and daughter, Wilma and Grace and Mariann Ashby. Refreshments of sandwiches, salad, pickles and coffee were served.

The next meeting will be a basket dinner served at 12 o'clock noon at the home of Mrs. James Albion. Mrs. L. D. Wood will be assistant hostess.

Adults, too, prefer "NO DOSING" for COLDS

When Vicks introduced the better method of treating colds externally it was especially appreciated by mothers because it avoids "dosing," which so often disturbs children's delicate digestions.

Each year more and more adults, too, have found Vicks equally good for their own colds. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Just rubbed on, Vicks gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled, and, at the same time, acts through the skin like a plaster.

I WAS AMAZED AT QUICK RELIEF KONJOLA GAVE

After Three Years Suffering From Many Ailments New Medicine Came to His Rescue

MR. JOHN BERNHARDT

"Konjola has restored my old-time health to me," said Mr. John Bernhardt, Sr., 2467 South Pennsylvania street, Indianapolis. "Stomach and liver disorders have made me miserable for the past three years. No matter what I ate, or how little, gas formed and I belched up a hot, bitter liquid. My tongue was badly coated and I had awful dizzy spells over now and then. I could not find a medicine to stop my suffering."

"I decided to give Konjola a trial after I read so much about the merits of this new medicine. I had hoped that it would do some good, but I was amazed at the quick results it gave me. After taking just seven bottles all my health troubles disappeared, and today I can truthfully say that I feel great. I feel sure that what this medicine has done for me it will do for others."

Konjola is sold in Greencastle at Owl drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Colds are serious. Even mild cases are dangerous. Remember KONJOLA GOLD COMPOUND (tablets) is giving amazing relief to thousands of cold sufferers every year. These tablets are of the same high quality as Konjola.

SAUCES GIVE GREATER ZEST TO MANY FAMILIAR DISHES

By JOSEPH BOGGIA, Chef
The Plaza Hotel, New York City

THE sauce chef is one of the most important functionaries in the kitchens of our great hotels, for upon his skill depends the appetite appeal of scores of the dishes which make or mar the reputation of the cuisine. His imagination and skillful blending of ingredients give that zestful flavor which is the final, perfect flowering of the culinary art.

It seems odd that greatly as sauces are appreciated by those dining in public eating places, we so seldom find them in the home.

This is not as it should be. Few sauces are difficult to prepare. No more is required than a little time and patience, an intelligent reading of directions and a careful mixing of the ingredients in the right proportions.

SAUCE TARTARE adds greatly to the appetite appeal of fried oysters, scallops, smelts and many other varieties of fish. Mix together one-half teaspoon mustard, one-half teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne and one teaspoon powdered sugar. Add yolks of two eggs. Stir until thoroughly blended, setting bowl in pan of ice water. Add drop by drop at first, one-half cup olive oil, stirring with wooden spoon or wire whisk. Dilute very gradually with one and a half tablespoons vinegar as the mixture thickens, at the same time adding the oil more rapidly. Keep in the refrigerator until just before serving. Then add one tablespoon tarragon vinegar, one-half shallot chopped fine, and one-half tablespoon each of finely chopped capers, pickles, olives and parsley.

SAUCE ALHAMBRA for oysters, fish or cold meats—Stir very slowly three-fourths cup olive oil into the beaten yolks of three eggs, alternating the oil with the juice of two lemons, two and a half tablespoons sugar, one-half teaspoon salt and one teaspoon onion juice. Blend thoroughly and add one large dill pickle, chopped fine.

BERBER SAUCE for baked ham—Heat one pint sweet cream and one tablespoon cornstarch in double boiler. Mix together four tablespoons dry mustard and one-half cup sugar. Add to the liquid and boil for two minutes. Add beaten yolks of two eggs and boil two minutes. Add very slowly one cup cider vinegar and a half teaspoon salt. Boil another two minutes.

HORSERADISH SAUCE for any sea food—Mix together one cup horseradish, one-fourth teaspoon dry mustard, two tablespoons sugar, and juice of one-half lemon. Heat in double boiler. Add slowly one-half cup sweet cream and cook until thick. Then add one tablespoon butter.

that threatens the modern figure

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Avoid the snags along the common-sense path to fitness and fashion. Don't let over-indulgence deprive you of the tantalizing contour of the modern figure. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain the graceful, modern figure with its captivating curves.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quick "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

SYNOPSIS

Major Anthony Crespin and his wife, Lucilla, are being taken from Dehra Dun to Bahari, where their children are spending the hot months of India, in the airplane of Dr. Basil Traherne, a former school fellow of the Major's. Traherne has kept Crespin from being cashed for drunkenness and is trying to cure him of his craving for drink in spite of the fact that he is in love with Lucilla. He loses his way in the fog and is forced to bring his airplane down in the rocky, inhospitable country of Rukh. Crespin is jealous of his wife's admiration for Traherne's skill as a flyer, and they quarrel.

It was the acutest moment of Anthony Crespin's life. And his wife turned him down.

"No," she said, "the others, I suppose, only helped you like whiskey, to see the world through a haze. I saw the world through a haze when I married you; but you have dispelled it once for all. Don't force me to tell you how impossible it is for me to be your wife again. I am the mother of your children—that gives you a terrible hold over me. Be content with that."

CHAPTER XII

"Oh, Mrs. Crespin," Traherne called before they saw him clambering down from the rocks where the ruined bus lay. "I've found in the wreck the newspaper you spoke of—you were right about Rukh."

Major Crespin pulled himself up roundly, not to show his hurt to the other man. "What does it say?"

She thought him ridiculously "trapped out."

Traherne came up to them with the paper in his hand and unfolded it and read, "Abulabad, Tuesday. Sentence of death has been passed on the three men found guilty of the murder of Mr. Hareldale. It appears that these miscreants are natives of Rukh, a small and little-known independent state among the northern spurs of the Himalayas."

"Yes," Lucilla nodded, "that's what I read."

"This news isn't the best possible passport for us in our present situation," Traherne said.

"But," Mrs. Crespin protested reassuringly, "if we're hundreds of miles from anywhere, it can't be known here yet."

"One would think not," Traherne assented.

"In any case, they wouldn't dare to molest us," Major Crespin said nonchalantly.

Traherne shot him a sharp look. Did Crespin for one moment believe that? Or was he trying to reassure his wife?

"All the same," the physician said—and following Crespin's lead by saying it lightly, "it might be safest to burn this paragraph, in case there's anybody here that can read it." He tore out the strip of paper and lighted it at Crespin's cigarette, watching it burn until it licked at his fingers.

He watched it burn to the last ash, and then stamped upon it. Yarak the priest watched intently.

Mrs. Crespin placed the rest of the newspaper with her leather coat where it lay on a rock.

"Hullo!" Crespin held up a hand. "What's this?"

Strange vibrations, mingled with the throb of tom-toms and the clash of cymbals were faintly heard from the distance, growing clearer and clearer.

"Sounds like the march of the Great Panjandrum," Traherne murmured.

"The natives all ran to the point where the path debouched on the open space. The rustle of satisfaction which is the Oriental equivalent of our 'loud cheering' swept through them like a gust of gentle wind in a field of well-ripe corn."

It was a wild procession that came down the mountain path. A gigantic negro, flourishing two great naked sabers, and gyrating in a barbaric war-dance, headed it. Six musketeers followed him, beating their tom-toms and clashing their cymbals till the very air

A half score of men, clad to their heels in spotless flowing white, each with a flat hat with wide, tightly curled brim, each hat of a different color, came next, and close behind them was carried the Raja's palanquin.

The seated figure inside it showed out indistinctly through the gauzy film of the litter's curtains; a human figure undoubtedly, and in perfect repose, but instinct with power. Immediately behind him came the strangest sight in Rukh—an English valet, an immaculate demure, correct valet who might have strolled into the picture from St. James Street, unmoved, detached and imperturbable.

Behind Watkins, for his name was as English as his coat, came the Raja's bodyguard, or a considerable detachment of it—grim-faced, high-cheeked men of all heights and shapes, dressed in the most fantastic and parti-colored attire that men-at-arms ever wore yet.

The bearers put the litter down deferentially, directly in front of the temple, and knelt down behind it with their faces to the ground.

The man in Bond Street clothes came at once, with a padded, catlike tread to the side of the resting litter, parted its curtains, and held down obsequiously a crooked broadcloth arm through which, as it rose, the seated figure put a slim brown hand.

The Raja stepped out, released his servitor's arm, and made just a step towards the three Europeans, scanning the men lightly and in silence—not seeming to see Mrs. Crespin.

He was tall, well-built, about forty, Traherne thought, and the two Englishmen knew from his jewels that, whatever his people were, the Raja of Rukh was fabulously rich.

The Raja's face was intelligent, his hands were beautiful, his tiny mustache had a silken look of Paris, his eyes were dark and fascinating.

Mrs. Crespin thought him riddling, outrageously "trapped out" for even an uncivilized man. Anthony Crespin, with the British soldier's impervious insularity, set him down "a hell of a nigger."

"Oh, yes a little," the Raja said in faces, in human frames and in gait, thought that the Raja of Rukh had character and distinct and polished personality.

CHAPTER XIII

THE Raja waited, cool, courteous and non-committal. Crespin advanced and saluted. The Easterner inclined his head slightly.

"Does Your Highness speak English?" Crespin asked.

"Oh, yes a little," the Raja said in English as English as Crespin's own.

Crespin pulled himself together instantly. "Then I have to apologize for our landing uninvited in your territory."

"Uninvited? But I assure you not unwelcome."

"We are given to understand that this is the State of Rukh."

"The Kingdom of Rukh," the Raja said with a shadowy smile. "Major—if I rightly read the symbols on your cuff—"

"Major Crespin," Anthony stated, saluting again. "Permit me to introduce my wife."

The Raja of Rukh saw Mrs. Crespin for the first time—apparently. He gazed profoundly. "I am delighted, Madam, to welcome you to my secluded dominions. You are the first lady of your nation I have had the honor of receiving."

"Your Highness is very kind," Mrs. Crespin said, rising.

"And this," Crespin gestured, "is Dr. Basil Traherne, whose aeroplane—or what is left of it—you see."

The Raja smiled, more widely, more genially this time. "Dr. Traherne? The Doctor Traherne whose name I have so often seen in the newspaper? The Pasture of Malaria?"

"The newspapers make too much of my work," Traherne disallowed. "It is very incomplete."

"Rome was not built in a day," the Raja laughed, "or the Taj. But you are an aviator as well."

"Only as an amateur," Traherne insisted.

The Raja let that pass. "I presume it is some misadventure—a most fortunate misadventure for me—that has carried you so far into the wilds beyond the Himalayas?"

"Yes," Traherne assented ruefully. "We got lost in the clouds."

Major and Mrs. Crespin were coming up from the plain to see their children at a hill station—"Pahari, no doubt?"

"Yes, Pahari—and I was rash enough to suggest that I might save them three days' traveling, by taking them up in my aeroplane."

"Madam is a sportswoman, then?" The Raja turned to Lucilla.

"Oh, I have been up many times," she replied. "It was no fault of Dr. Traherne's that we went astray. The weather was impossible."

OBITUARY

Eula Amerman Stoops was born in Vermillion County, Indiana, Sept. 13, 1885. In this family were two sisters, Mrs. Minnie Eaton now of Dana, Ind., and Mrs. A. C. Ford, now of Berrien Springs, Mich., and three brothers who have preceded her in death.

She attended public schools and graduated from High School at Dana, Ind. She also graduated from State Normal and has continued her education at DePauw University.

She was married to James F. Stoops, June 11, 1911 and is survived by him and by her one son, James Amerman Stoops to whom she has been a wonderful and devoted mother with high ambition for his success.

She has long been a member of the Methodist Church of the D. A. R. and of the Eastern Star Lodge giving her strength liberally to all.

Her too short life came to its conclusion Friday, Jan. 24 at 4:30 p. m. at her home on Anderson Street. In the comparatively short span of this life much good has been done and many friends have been made. Her life has been devoted largely to her son and to the interests of education. For many years she has served this community faithfully and well in our dear High School. No pupil who has been fortunate enough to be in her classes can ever forget her fine character and her ability to make the way of learning attractive. Her pupils will mourn her going even as her sent free—one to each family

"I was married and longed for a baby every day with all my heart, but was denied," writes Mrs. L. Scheller, Indiana, "so I sent for your prescription. While taking the second box I was unable to express my happiness. I had never had a sick day. I became the mother of a fine 8½ pound baby. God only knew our joy. I hope every woman longing for motherhood will take your medicine. You are welcome to use this letter and picture for publication. Thank you."

"Married 11 years and doctors told me I would never have any children," writes Mrs. White, Pa. "I tried your medicine. Now I am to be a mother in October. My dearest wish realized."

Dr. DePew's treatment, a non-specific, based on Glandular activity, has been used with such results by thousands of women that for the next 30 days he offers to send a full dollar treatment, postpaid, no C. O. D., no cost, no obligation, free to every woman who writes.

Dr. DePew has set aside 1000 free treatments for this month, so be sure and write today. He will also send a free booklet "Childless Marriages Explained."

Simply send name, a postcard will do, and remedy will be mailed in plain wrapper. Dr. DePew believes you will be surprised and delighted. Address: Dr. DePew, Suite AP-2, Costes House, Kansas City, Mo.

family and for many years her name will live as the embodiment of friendly devotion and the determination to do each day's task to the best of her ability that makes a great life.

This determination and devotion to her duty and to her son was one of her strong characteristics and brought her to her daily tasks when others would have given up in despair. Though weakened in body and suffering much her pupils always found her cheerful, friendly and smiling. Truly she lived for them and for her family. She had hoped to finish the school term but it was not to be. The time came when she could no longer meet her classes and very soon she was no more. Human strength could carry her no longer and she passed on to the reward of the faithful.

Her family and our community have lost a most valued member but we have gained the benefit of a rich and faithful life devoted to our young people. Truly we may say that she "has fought a good fight; She has kept the Faith."

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our appreciation to our friends and neighbors, for their many kindnesses and expressions of sympathy, during the recent illness and at the death of my beloved wife.

GIRL RESERVES ORGANIZED IN GREENCASTLE HIGH SCHOOL

Last October a group of thirty girls of the second, third and fourth years of high school organized a Girl Reserve club. This organization is the girls department of the International Young Women's Christian Association. In cities having no local Y. W. C. A. these clubs are called Registered Girl Reserve clubs, and are directly responsible to the Girl Reserve department of the National Y. W. C. A. at New York City. The group here has had little publicity until it was certain that it would be permanent.

There are two divisions of Girl Reserve work, one for junior high and one for senior high girls. Here we have only the senior high work, as the younger girls are largely members of the Girl Scout organization. The difference in the two departments is that the work for the young girls is planned for them, and the older girls plan their own work.

Twice a month general meetings are held. Business is transacted, followed by a program or social hour. The alternate weeks are in the form of interest groups. Girls are encouraged to adopt hobbies, or learn more about vocations that will be of value to them in the future. At present we have two interest groups, one in dramatics, and one in handicraft.

The officers of the club are: President, Miriam Peck; vice president, Julia Murnane; secretary, Elizabeth Knauer; treasurer, Margaret Matkin. Committee chairman: Social, Carolyn Ellis; program Miriam Bantz; social service, Elizabeth Erdman, and publicity, Madonna Grimes.

An advisory council sponsors the club. Members of the council are: Mrs. H. H. Ellis, Mrs. B. B. McMahon, Mrs. Kenneth Peck, Mrs. Curry Imman, Mrs. S. R. Rariden, Miss Catherine Tillotson, Miss Velva DeMoss, Miss Pearl Gibson. Mrs. Jacob Bantz is the chief advisor and works directly with the girls, having had several years' experience in city Y. W. C. A. work. A number of college girls who had formerly been Girl Reserves had charge of first Recognition service. At this time Mrs. W. H. Gibson, a member of the National Board was here to meet the girls and council members. The girls served dinner to the entire group, council, and college Girl Reserves.

Among other activities the girls distributed Red Cross advertisements sold Christmas seals for the Tuberculosis Association, gave a Christmas pageant, providing a basket for a family at Thanksgiving. They will give a style show at the high school Senior Carnival, the proceeds of which will go to the seniors. The girls are also planning a Valentine party.

The girls are fortunate in having Miss Ruth Kattman of the public speaking departments of the University as coach of dramatics.

School authorities have cooperated splendidly with all the efforts of the club, and many parents have expressed their approval and interest. It is not an invitation organization, any girl being welcome to join who belongs to the second, third or fourth year of high school. Meetings are held each Monday night at 7 o'clock in the Methodist church.

"Four Feathers" Great African Action Picture Coming

Action plus adventure, terrors and perils of such convincing bigness that audiences who behold them will be swept into transports of excitement, at the Granada Theatre Wednesday, Thursday and Friday with the showing of Paramount's epic picture of the wild African Sudan country—"The Four Feathers."

Here is "a" picture—and there is not a word of dialog in its entire footage. This alone, in a day when talkers are rapidly establishing a new show world, is ample recommendation for your seeing it twice or three times. It is a big picture—one which is too big even for dialog. But it should be said right here that the excellent musical score, composed by Wm. Frederick Peters, which accompanies the picture is a delightful supplement to the visual interest which the film arouses.

The story is based on the famous novel of British soldier life in the Sudan, "The Four Feathers" written by A. E. W. Mason and often referred to as the "British bible of courage."

Merian C. Cooper and Ernest B. Schoedsack, the two wonder-men of picturedom, whose roving cameras were responsible for the remarkable adventure films, "Chang" and "Grass," spent nearly two years in Africa, taking the "shots" which constitute "The Four Feathers" and for which they faced unbelievable dangers.

The interior scenes were shot at Hollywood, with Lother Mendes assisting Cooper and Schoedsack in the direction.

It would be an idle waste of words to try to describe "The Four Feathers" in detail here. It can only be said that here is one of the most magnificent, one of the most thrilling full adventure cinemas of all time, and if you don't agree with this reviewer when he says that, well—it's simply because you have not seen the picture.

"The Saturday Night Kid" Is Fast-Tempo, Zippy Basis For Bow's Art
"The Saturday Night Kid" came to the Granada Sunday to the tune of well-deserved rounds of applause from audiences there for the last times. "The Saturday Night Kid," he it known, is Clara Bow herself; the smash-bang, love 'em and cleave to 'em red-headed "It" girl.

This time she is a zippy, ambitious little sales girl in a big department store. She falls for James Hall, hand some floor-walker, but he begins to forget when he gets a promotion from his boss. In order to make him think her more desirable Clara deliberately establishes a "rep" for herself as a Saturday Night Kid, a girl who makes a date with a different "swell guy" every Saturday night.

Her younger sister, Jean Arthur, also a store employee, makes a play for Jimmie. But she gets in a jam by squandering company funds on the horse races. When the showdown comes, Jean lies and tells her superiors that Clara stole the money.

Miss Bow did a great job of acting in "Ladies of the Mob," "The Wild Party" and "Dangerous Curves"—proof that she requires only a good part to give her talents the great display they deserve. She does an even better job of it in "The Saturday Night Kid." In short, it is a well-rounded play for a well-rounded girl. A Charley Chase talking comedy completes the bill.
